

INNOVATION IN AMERICAN GRAND STRATEGY—THE EASY AND THE HARD

Presentation by Steven Metz

U.S. Army War College Strategic Studies Institute

April 2011

A WINDOW OF OPPORTUNITY

- ✘ Evolutionary pattern of American strategy
 - + Gradual obsolescence or shock erodes consensus
 - + Period of debate (late '40s, early '60s, mid '70s, early '90s, post 9/11)
 - + New consensus
 - + Adjustment
- ✘ Now entering a period of debate
 - + Push and pull, challenge and threat
 - + Malleable domestic politics

Potential for innovation

CONSTRAINTS

- ✘ Strategic culture and tradition
 - + Intolerance for ambiguity
 - + Impatience
 - + Difficulty understanding the impact of culture
 - + Peculiar national self image
 - ✘ Obsessive need to be liked
 - ✘ Difficulty understanding that American power is intimidating
- ✘ Domestic context
 - + Idea that public opinion shapes strategy
 - + Intense, vitriolic domestic political conflict fueled by the profusion of information
 - + National security policy a political cudgel

EASY OPTIONS

- ✘ A tighter regional shot group
- ✘ Resisting regime change
- ✘ (Re)reliance on stand off military power and coalitions
 - + The “Libya option”
 - + Conventional and counter-terrorism
- ✘ Slower pace of military advancement
 - + Little interest in “transformation” despite emerging technological break throughs
- ✘ Less focus on determining outcomes

HARD OPTIONS

- ✘ Real offshore balancing
 - + Preventing adverse outcomes rather than shaping positive ones
- ✘ Loosening conditions for partnerships
- ✘ Tightening conditions for partnerships
 - + The “partner problem”—flawed assumptions
- ✘ Serious retrenchment
- ✘ A less state centric strategy
- ✘ An increased focus on nontraditional threats

THE WELL TRAVELED ROAD

- ✘ Likely trajectory—minor adjustment (the easy option) until obsolescence or shock
- ✘ Black swans may change everything
 - ✘ Major domestic attack
 - ✘ Global economic collapse or pandemic
 - ✘ High impact technological change
 - ✘ Emergence of new hostile ideology
